ENGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY, WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION.

An ANGLO-CHINESE DICTIONARY, by the Rev. W. LOBSCHEID, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

FOR scope and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given; the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications.

The scope of the work is so great, and its utilitarian purposes so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully, with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occasionally.

It comprises upwards of two thousand large quarto pages.

Price in London, £7 4s.; in Hongkong, $30.

The Daily Press.

HONGKONG, JUNE 18TH, 1869.

THE news brought from home by the French mail appears to indicate that there is a likelihood of a reaction in public opinion in England, in reference to the course of action that has been adopted by the Government in regard to China affairs. As they have gradually been brought more prominently before the notice of the public, the truth with respect to them has become more apparent, and the question has been asked in the House of Commons of the Under Secretary of State for Foreign affairs, whether Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK had expressed his opinion that the Chinese have no desire to enter upon a career of progress, unless forced to do so. To this pointed enquiry, Mr. OTWAY, as usual, gave an evasive answer, but to residents in China, the facts are well known, and there is no doubt that the true answer must be given before very long. When the public understand that the interests of foreigners in China will be at a standstill, so long as they take no steps to force concessions from the Chinese, it may be hoped that justor views than those generally entertained in consequence of the misrepresentations of the BURLINGAME Mission, will commence to gain ground. It does not appear by any means that the people at home will be likely to favour a weak policy, when they become aware of the true state of things existing. They have done so hitherto, simply because they have been ignorance of them, and have been deceived by the flourishing accounts given by the Chinese Embassy.

THE unfortunate Min case seems never likely to come to an end. The last phase, which has been brought before the notice of the public, is the disallowal of a claim for interest made against the Banks, in whose hands the money awarded by the decision of the Court in Hongkong, and which was reversed by the Privy Council, was for a lengthened period. The CHIEF-JUSTICE, in delivering his judgment, seemed to be fully alive to the practical injustice of the decision, but considered himself bound by the law of the case, by which the Court in Hongkong had, according to his view, no power to award interest. The point is one of no entirely technical a nature that it can hardly be discussed with advantage otherwise than professionally. In its practical bearing, however, there are a few considerations which cannot but occur to all who have watched the proceedings. If by the legal technicality, of not having specifically applied for interest when the appeal was made, it is out of the power of the Court here to award interest, it can scarcely be imagined that there are not some means, whereby the matter may be adjusted, and substantial justice obtained. The claim is one obviously fair, being against an establishment whose business it is to deal in money, and who, therefore, have presumably directly benefitted by the sum being in their hands. Had the money been in the hands of some party who might not be able to be notified by it, the matter might appear differently, but it certainly must seem a very gross injustice that the Bank should be exempt from paying back the actual amount that it must have made by the decision wrongfully given in its favour. It is hardly to be supposed that there is no remedy for such a miscarriage of justice; and it may be taken as almost certain that such a remedy will be found. Under the circumstances, it would appear that the matter is at least a fair one for a reasonable compromise, and it may be hoped that this plan of settling the question at rest, which it is understood has been suggested, will be resorted to as the best means of avoiding further delay, litigation, and expense.

There seems to be no end to the extraordinary forms in which telegrams about China appear at home. The Times has one to the effect that "Sir Rutherford is about to proceed on a tour of exploration in the province of Sc-chuen, with a view to collecting information for the use of the treaty revisers."

By the mail steamer for Shanghai, which left yesterday, the departure will be noticed of Mr. F. W. Mitchell, Postmaster-General, who proceeds on an official tour of inspection of the postal agencies. He will go from Shanghai through the Inland Sea of Japan, calling at Nagasaki, Kobi, Osaka, and Hiogo, and from thence to Yokohama and Yeddo; from which place he will return to Hongkong, after which, he will start for Swatow, Amoy, and Foochow.

The P.M.S.S. Company's steamer Wairuna, Captain Watson, from New York, with dates to the 9th March, en route to China, anchored in Singapore harbour on the 8th instant, and the same Company's steamer Nautilus, Captain Hodges, which left New York on the same day, was hourly expected.

AN UNENVIABLE POSITION.—A Paris correspondent of the Indépendance Belge relates an amusing incident which occurred at the Princess Mathilde's reception, the Empress Napoleon being present. An actress from the Odéon Theatre, recited Victor Hugo's Ode to Napoleon I. which is little else than a long invective against England. It so happened that our Ambassador, Lord Lyons, was right in front of the actress, and it was to him, in utter ignorance of his name and position, that she seemed to address the poet's verses. The confusion of the rest of the company may be imagined. That nothing might be wanting to increase the embarrassment of the Ambassador, the Emperor had to lead off the applause.

ROBBING A POST-OFFICE VAN.—As a Post-Office van was passing along Marseilles, on its way to the railway-station, some malefactors found means to force open the compartment behind and abstract a large leather sack and three smaller bags containing letters. A woman who saw the act hastened to inform the driver, but the marauders had already got off with their booty. Information was immediately given to the police, and this led to the close watching of three suspected individuals, who were seen to enter the cellar of a house in the Rue de Paradis. The officers of justice soon after arrived, and found the persons in question with the bags forced open, and the ground strewed with letters. They at once made a complete confession of their guilt, but added that their enterprise had failed, as they had only found one letter containing 200f. in bank notes.

SUPREME COURT.

BEFORE CHIEF-JUSTICE SMALE.

Pipon v. Bosman.

Mr. Pollard continued his argument on behalf of the defendant. He put it that even if the plaintiffs could recover by this form of action still they could not recover on any promise to pay made by the defendant, for the reason that although he appeared to contract himself, still he did so merely as agent, and this was admitted in the correspondence by the plaintiffs. Unless there was some expression in the letters by the defendant to the effect that he affirmed his personal liability, and the plaintiffs so understood it, he could not be held liable by the plaintiffs. Where a principal is liable an agent cannot be held liable also. The plaintiffs knew that Koopmanschap was liable, and they wrote and told him so; therefore he submitted they could not come within the cases of Spittle v. Lavender, Humphreys v. Dale. Who did the plaintiffs give credit to? The letters of the plaintiffs themselves showed this. The money obtained by Bosman from the bill drawn on the plaintiffs, was used for and appropriated to the use of Koopmanschap & Co. Bosman had drawn for the full value of the San Francisco invoice price and charges, but he did this to cover his advances to Koopmanschap. Upon the cases cited, he put it, that it was impossible for the plaintiffs to come into court and say that they gave credit to Bosman, or that they looked to him personally to make good any short proceeds. The fact of Koopmanschap & Co. having approved of the note of the plaintiffs, showed that Bosman was not personal liable, because he had protested against the course pursued by the plaintiffs, and instructed them to hold on to the cargo, but the principal took away from him, the power of disputing their action by this ratification. This was not personal liability. The defendant had written to Smith on learning of the sale of a parcel of the flour at $8.17½, that he was afraid "this would leave a large loss to our San Francisco friends," and again "make your charges as light as possible, and we have drawn it will be duly appreciated by our friends in San Francisco." Now, could any man who had any idea of personal liability whatever write like this? He submitted that upon the whole, the case would be decided on the simple ground, that on the authority of Owen v. Kopke, the plaintiffs could not recover in this form of action, that in fact, they were out of court.

Mr. Hayllar in reply said he was glad that the defendant had not repudiated the action of the plaintiffs. He was glad this part of the defence had been expunged. He hoped for the benefit of commercial integrity that this defence would not stand. If a man was to write one thing and mean another, all business relations between this and the Mauritius, as well as every where else, must cease. The pleadings in this case were, he submitted, all right. No special agreement need be pleaded when there was nothing remaining to be done, except the payment of money. Was this, he asked, the time to come and take a technical objection, when a special case had been agreed upon and signed upon by both parties?

Mr. Pollard said that a special case was merely a statement of agreed facts with pleading, but certainly a question of law could be raised. His objection to the pleadings was not a technical objection, but a legal objection, and certainly the Court if the plaintiffs were seeking their remedy in a wrong manner, would not grant them the remedy.

Mr. Hayllar—It was a technical objection, and would have been raised before a jury on his pointing out the promise, but the promise was now in and the objection must fall. He was perfectly certain the pleadings were right, they had been drawn by a much more experienced and a greater pleader than himself. Now, when Koopmanschap heard of this shipment of flour to the plaintiffs, he remarked in his letter, that "he was sorry to hear it," and he, Mr. Hayllar, put it that when Bosman drew the bill and promised to pay the short proceeds, it was entirely without the agency of Koopmanschap.

Mr. Pollard objected to this argument, as being in direct controversion to the facts of the special case stated and signed by Mr. Hayllar, and he was, therefore, precluded from putting it forward, but the Chief-Justice ruled that the argument was not in contradiction with the facts stated in the case.

Mr. Hayllar continued—The defendant was not in any way empowered by Koopmanschap to make this promise to repay such proceeds, and Koopmanschap never ratified such promise. The correspondence did not show that the defendant had any power whatever to re-ship and raise money on such shipment. Mr. Pollard had not quoted a single case to show that an agent could not bind himself. There was a paragraph in the letter that showed clearly that Bosman meant to pledge his own credit and no other. The case was simply this—a man had to be allowed to raise money in a manner and make promises to pay, and then repudiate the short proceeds arising. If a man makes a promise of this kind, and it does not shortly appear that he is making it for another, he is himself liable for his promise.

The Chief-Justice said he was very sorry he had the case before him, but he would take time to consider the whole question before giving judgment.

SUMMARY JURISDICTION COURT.

BEFORE THE HON. J. FAUNCEFORT.

T. W. BERRINGTON v. CHU-SHUN.—This case was an adjourned one, the plaintiff on Tuesday not not bringing forward sufficient evidence.

On the present occasion, Mr. Barrington produced several witnesses who proved that moneys were paid by them as "rent and taxes" which Mr. Barrington swore he had never received from his late collector, for whom defendant stood security.

The defendant clearly stated amounted to a plea, that, although defendant was security for the imprisoned collector, and although the said collector did embezzle or squeeze a considerable sum of money, yet the money squeezed was the "cross," and not "rent."

His Honor intimated that plaintiff had produced witnesses to prove that rent had been paid to the collector now in gaol which Mr. Barrington had never received, he would therefore give judgment for the plaintiff for $23 50, which the witnesses who had come forward proved had been paid, and which plaintiff testified to never having received.

LIN-YOU v. BROWN (Interpleader).—This case arose out of a claim for eight dollars, which the defendant paid Mr. Ullmann for a Mr. Darrill, for a pair of pants, which Darrill anxiously and eager y wanted to wear at Mr. Frisby's funeral. On the 28th of April judgment went for the plaintiff, and execution being issued, certain goods were seized as what was supposed by Mr. McBean, the bailiff, to be Darrill's residence. On the present occasion an interpleader was raised, wherein it was stated by a woman named Lin-yow that the furniture belonged to her, and not to the original defendant, Darrill.

His Honor severely commented upon the apathy shown by Darrill, who did not appear to manifest any very ardent desire to pay the eight dollars.

Darrill said he would like to pay the money, but he could not, as he had not enough by him.

The woman Lin-yow was examined, and stated that she bought goods which had been seized at a publichouse, kept by a man named Cocks.

Plaintiff here said the house was once kept by Cocks, but he took it from that person, and bought nearly all the furniture.

The woman Lin-yow was then asked, and swore positively to having bought the furniture seized at the public auction at the Hotel de Colonies, with her own money, the goods were hers, and were bought not by Darrill's money.

A Chinese woman was called by the interpreter to prove that the goods were bought by her at the auction, but she did not evidently do so to the satisfaction of his Honor.

D. Darrill, the defendant in the original case, was examined at considerable length as to the ownership of the furniture now under seizure prior to the public auction, wherein it passed into Lin-yow's hands, and he said that although he had an interest in the goods, inasmuch as they were sold under a warrant against him, he not having bought them, but their being taken by the women Lin-yow, they were hers. The woman he would swear herself had for them, and he was sure that the goods were sold at the public auction. Mr. Barrington could prove that.

Mr. Barrington could not go that length, but he could say that while he had possession of the house nothing but a few boxes of lodgers' clothing were removed, and he knew of that.

Brown, the plaintiff in the original action, now defendant, swore that the woman Lin-yow was never at the auction, did not buy the goods, and that they were removed from the "Hotel des Colonies" before the auction took place. It was a mere attempt to do him out of his honest money, which he had as innocently and willingly paid down for Darrill's pants "to go to a funeral in."

Andrew King, once interested in the Hotel des Colonies, was called by Brown, and stated that he was sure that the things seized were not sold at the auction, but were in Darrill's room at the house before the sale.

His Honor was of opinion that the seizure was good, and the things must be sold under execution if the 8$ be not paid. Judgment for defendant.

DYER v. SCHWARTZ.—His Honor gave judgment in this case yesterday. He remarked that he regretted very much this matter had not been decided by a jury. The only manner in which the defendants accounted for the missing case which they claimed to have delivered, was merely a surmise on their part that it had been dishonestly taken by the cargo-boat men, but his Honor had not been sufficiently satisfied from any evidence produced that there was any real ground for such a surmise, and on a surmise only he could not find the master of this cargo-boat guilty of felony. Looking at the whole case, he was of opinion, that defendants must make good this missing case, No. 4,378. The onus of proof regarding the missing case was upon the defendants, and they had not dispelled from his mind the impression that had been created by the endorsement of the mate on the Bill of Lading to the effect that one case was short. Judgment for plaintiff with costs.

Mr. Sharp appeared for the plaintiffs, and Mr. Caldwell for the defendant.

CUMMINS v. MATHEWS.—This was the case regarding the two seamen of the ship Eleanor Dixon, who claimed damages for breach of articles. The case was postponed from Tuesday last in order that further evidence regarding the change of ownership might be produced.

Mr. Caldwell said that he was ready to produce the bill of sale, but before doing so, he wished to place Mr. Howard in the box, and examine him upon the facts connected with his purchase of the vessel. He contended that where had been no change of ownership in reality.

Mr. Howard was then recalled, and deposed—Sent instructions to Captain Williams, of Cowes, the registered owner of the Eleanor Dixon, to purchase a ship for him. Sent a bill home for £1,600. Letter produced, dated October 8th, 1868, from Williams, in which he stated that he had purchased the Eleanor Dixon for £1,300, a second letter dated 22nd October, advised that the vessel had been registered in Williams' name, until the bills drawn at six months became due. Received a bill of sale from Williams dated April, 1868. The Captain, defendant, had no order from witness to discharge the plaintiffs. They came on board after having asked for their discharge, and were set to work.

Mr. Caldwell said that from this evidence he submitted that Mr. Howard was in reality the owner of the vessel all the time, and that Williams was merely his trustee. A declaration of ownership could not be made until the vessel arrived at Cowes, where Mr. Howard resided, in the meantime Williams was the registered owner as trustee for Howard.

His Honor remarked that according to this evidence, Mr. Howard rendered himself liable for, and bound by these articles, which stipulated that the plaintiff should be returned to England within three years, and yet Mr. Howard had said in his former evidence that he did not know what would be the next destination of the ship, she would go where the freights offered most inducement. Plaintiff swore that he was a first-rate man, and was bound to be home in three years, but Mr. Howard did not say the vessel would be on her way home in three years. He thought this was a case that might be settled. The plaintiff was entitled to his wages, and perhaps Mr. Howard would agree to give the plaintiff some compensation or a passage. Mr. Caldwell said that if the two men had all accepted their pay, and been satisfied, except these two men, who had harrassed the Captain, had him arrested, and detained the ship, causing very great trouble and annoyance to the owner, his Honor said he could not blame the plaintiff for having gone to a lawyer, and tried to get what they considered their rights. There was no blame attached to them.

Mr. Sharp said he had written to the captain, but never received any reply. The captain had told the men that he would not give them "a damned cent." The ship was cleared from the Harbour Master's office, and he was obliged to take out a capias to protect the rights of his clients.

Mr. Caldwell submitted that the defendant was bound to pay the wages due, but not a cent more.

Mr. Sharp submitted that the articles had been broken, and the plaintiff was therefore entitled to damages. New articles had been made out, and a new crew had been shipped. Therefore the old articles must have been abandoned and cancelled.

Mr. Caldwell said there no crew had been necessitated by the old crew having asked for their discharge.

His Honor remarked that if Mr. Sharp could not establish a change of ownership, he must show a breach of the articles by the captain, having refused to allow the men to prosecute the voyage, that he had, in fact, driven them ashore. At present he understood it that the men had come on shore of their own accord, and that the captain had always been willing to give the plaintiff his discharge and pay him his wages.

Mr. Sharp contended that the plaintiff had been forced to come in shore on account of the Captain refusing to give him compensation, and by reason of his shipping a new crew. He further contended that there had been a breach of the articles. A good deal of conversation followed, when his Honor said he would postpone the case until this morning, and then, if necessary, he would give judgment, but in the meantime, he would be glad if the matter could be arranged out of court.

ACHUN v. HONGKONG, CANTON AND MACAO S. CO.—This was an action to recover $75, claimed by the plaintiff as one month's wages due as mate of the steamer Poyang, he having been discharged without the usual month's notice.

The plaintiff stated that he was formerly a mate in the employ of the company. He was engaged by Captain Cary at $75 per month, and had received wages at that rate for several months, on the 5th of June, he was dismissed, without any notice whatever, merely receiving a note from Captain Sands, the Marine Superintendent, informing him that his services were no longer required.

Captain Sands, who appeared on behalf of the company, said that the plaintiff had been dismissed for having refused to take on board a quantity of cotton that came alongside on the morning of the 5th June. The plaintiff refused to take it until he had received the land. Plaintiff was not violent or impertinent in his manner towards the men in the cotton boat. When they found plaintiff would not take their cargo, the cottonmen went away and put it on board a fast boat.

Plaintiff explained that the load being the heaviest had to be stowed first, and the cotton on top, and he could not have taken the cotton on board at that time without great inconvenience, trouble, and extra labor.

His Honor said that there were certain grave acts which would justify the summary discharge of a servant without any notice, but want of judgment or stupidity was not sufficient justification for dismissal of a servant without notice. There was no evidence whatever of any unlignity and gross behaviour on the part of the plaintiff, and this was necessary in law to justify a master using such a summary method. The company had a perfect right to close their agreement with the plaintiff whenever they chose, but only at a month's notice, and by paying a month's wages, unless there was justification such as he had alluded to, above.

Captain Sands said there had been many complaints against the plaintiff; this was not by any means the first. He had been cautioned on a former occasion that his conduct must be changed.

His Honor said the law of master and servant was very clear on this point.

Capt. Sands said he thought this looked very much like an attempt to squeeze. If every one in the employ of the company should get a seaman whom discharged, there would be no end to this thing. The company had never been summoned but once before, in a case of this kind.

His Honor said it was a matter of every day occurrence in this court to have just such cases as this. The law was very clear on the point, and was the same in America and France, and all civilized countries. There had been no justification from defendant's own showing. There must therefore be judgment for the plaintiff for the amount claimed.

Capt Sands asked leave to appeal.

His Honor said there could not be an appeal on a matter of fact and not of law, and this was decided on a matter of fact entirely. However, if Capt. Sands wished, he could consult the legal adviser of the company and if he thought proper there could be an appeal.

POLICE INTELLIGENCE.

BEFORE C. MAY, ESQ.
JUNE 17TH.

In addition to the rather lengthy assault case reported below, there were one or two cases of some small interest before the sitting magistrate.

THE RIVAL COMPRADORES.

Leong-ayan, Leong-a-fa, Wong-a-kwan, and Chun-a-chien, of the Kwong-hing shop, 18, Scott's Lane, were summoned by Kwok-a-chay, by his attorney, H. C. Caldwell, Esq., for assault.

Ah-sye and Chew-kun, of the same shop, were also separately summoned by the same man for the same offence.

Mr. Hayllar, (instructed by Mr. Brereton, of Mr. H. C. Caldwell's office,) appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. Pollard, (instructed by Mr. J. J. Francis,) appeared for the defence.

Mr. Pollard in the first place mentioned that there were two summonses.

Mr. Brereton observed that it was all one charge, the assault took place at one time, and the application for the summons was against six. He believed that the stark had made a mistake in thinking that six people could not be summoned at once, so it came that four were in one summons and two in the other.

Mr. Pollard could not help the error which may have been made by the chief clerk, there were two summonses, and they must be heard separately.

Mr. May asked if it were not the same case for all that.

Mr. Pollard said that might or might not be so. He was instructed to defend four men, and he could only go into a case against four men.

Mr. Brereton remitted his Worship that there was one more time-since in which the magistrate made all the accused defendants at the same time, and afterwards finding that some of the defendants were innocent, they were put in the witness box.

Mr. May was aware of that, and in the present instance, he would like to do the same thing.

Mr. Pollard still objected.

Mr. May said he could adjourn the case, and grant fresh summons.

Mr. Pollard could not see the matter in that way. If there was no evidence brought forward on the present occasion, he would ask for the defendants' discharges, and then they could not be summoned again.

Mr. May, after some further discussion, decided that he would hear the two summonses together, and permit the counsel for the defence to call one or two of the defendants if necessary.

On the names of the six defendants being called there was one name, Leong-a-fa whom the complainant wanted.

The learned gentleman engaged immediately had another argument on this point, Mr. Hayllar asking for "A-fy's" being discharged, and "A-fa" being summoned to appear forthwith.

On the other hand, Mr. Pollard complained of "A-fy's" being dragged up to court for nothing, and asked if "A-fy" was discharged that he should have costs awarded under Section 7, Ordinance 14, of 1866.

Mr. May, after hearing both gentlemen for sometime, decided to summon "A-fa" forthwith, and afterwards consider the subject of costs when regarding to "A-fy."

Mr. Hayllar in stating the facts of the case, referred briefly to the complainant's position. He was a well-known comprador now, and was trading in co-partnership with a man named Wang-sam-que, under the sign of the Wing Kee shop. On the 8th instant, a small steamer named the Flying Send, came into harbour, and a number of compradores went off to her. Kwok-a-chay (complainant) and his partner, Sam-que, went off to the vessel, where the compradores were all eagerly trying to get the captain's custom. Sam-que was the successful candidate. The annoyed the defendants, the first of whom abused Kwok-a-chay, and who also told the captain that the complainant would sell him bad beef, dead cows, &c. Complainant denied this insinuation, and vindicated his veracity by saying he had been contractor to the British Troops in Canton. The learned counsel gave a resumé of the evidence, which would be brought forward in the case, concluding by asking his Worship not only to punish the defendants, but to bind them over to keep the peace.

Mr. Pollard could not help the error which may have been made by the chief clerk, there were two summonses, and they must be heard separately.

Mr. May asked if it were not the same case for all that.

Mr. Pollard said that might or might not be so. He was instructed to defend four men, and he could only go into a case against four men.

The learned counsel gave a resumé of the evidence, which would be brought forward in the case, concluding by asking his Worship not only to punish the defendants, but to bind them over to keep the peace.

Kwok-a-chay, the complainant, said he had been in business here for twelve years, sometime as coal contractor, and then as comprador with Wong sam-que. On the 8th instant, in the afternoon, his partner and himself went on board the Flying Send, where there were a number of other compradors. His partner secured the ship's custom, and then all the compradors left the ship excepting the defendants, Leong-a-yan (1st defendant) abused Sam-que saying "why do you sell things so cheap, the plaintiff his discharge and pay him his wages.

Mr. Sharp contended that the plaintiff had been forced to come in shore on account of the Captain refusing to give him compensation, and by reason of his shipping a new crew. Liberals of various shades, but amongst members of the Government itself, regarding the attitude taken by Mr. Bright on the Irish land question. The names of more than one member of the Cabinet are freely mentioned in connection with warm disclaimers of the assumption by the President of the Board of Trade of the right to pledge them to his well-known scheme for buying up Irish estates with Government money, and breaking them up into peasant properties. It is said by those who dislike the scheme, and who object to its announcement from the Treasury bench before it has been considered in the Cabinet, that the expressions with which it was accompanied, intimating that unless brought forward its author would not continue to hold the office of a Minister, were calculated to take away freedom of deliberation in the Cabinet. This is stoutly controverted by the friends and supporters of the right honourable gentleman, and will as a matter of course be repudiated by his colleagues, if they are interrogated on the subject in both Houses."

Lord Granville, in the House of Lords, has repudiated for the Government any sympathy with "visionary ideas" of tenant right. The danger of Mr. Bright's speech lies not so much in itself as in its connection with former declarations, and it is in the sense of these that the more excitable Irish will interpret it.

THE HONGKONG ASSOCIATION.
(London and China Herald.)

By the last mail the Hongkong Association of London received its first despatch from its fellow association at Hongkong. We have been advocating for some time a combination of the different Crown Colonies into one association, in order that their influence may be concentrated and brought to bear with effect on Government in any attempts which may be made to bring about an alleviation of existing grievances. But when we see that the Hongkong people fail and seem to acknowledge the existence of the London deadlyoes, we must admit that our idea has small chance of realisation within the present generation.

But this apathy, or laissez faire, or whatever it may be, is not confined to the good people of Hongkong. This day week (1st May) a meeting of the London association was convened by the Honorary Secretary, for the purpose of submitting the accounts and/or receiving the Hongkong letter. The Honorary Secretary was of course there himself, but only one other member of committee. We suppose the association must be considered as having collapsed.

MERCIFUL EMPLOYERS.—At the Mansion-house, London, on Tuesday Alexander Dyce, aged twenty-two charged with forging a cheque for £'00 upon Messrs. Baring Brothers, was brought up on remand. Mr. Mullens solicitor, said since the last examination Messrs. Baring taking into consideration the prisoner's youth, and the temptation to which he was exposed, desired to withdraw from the prosecution, if they could do so without prejudice to the public interest. The Lord Mayor on hearing the statement to turn the delinquency of his employers to the amendment of his life, discharged him.

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.
HONGKONG, THURSDAY EVENING.

The business of this day in New Patna has been chiefly among petty speculators to beat the market. While the large holders have been demanding high rates these non-holders of drug appeared as sellers at about ten dollars a chest below the actual market prices, and any demand, however small, upon them for the delivery of drug, at once brings them out as purchasers to meet their engagements. The quantity that has changed hands at low figures from time to time is something very large, it is said, and there can be but no question that during the near approach of the termination of time bargain operations, prices would again be better. It only then requires the same firmness on the part of the Importers as now exists. The following are the ruling quotations:—New Patna, $570 to $575, cash and on credit, from petty speculators hands it might be had at a little cheaper. New Benares, is held for $565. Old Patna, is quoted at $530. Old Benares, $550, nominal. Malwa, $635, dull.

With the exception of a few transactions in Raw Cotton, there is nothing to report in the markets for general merchandize. Business would seem to be entirely suspended, both in produce and manufactures, as well among the natives as among foreigners. Now and then a sale at public auction gives an opportunity for the native dealer to supply the limited wants of the local trade, beyond which there is no demand. The Dragon Festival has no doubt some influence with the dullness now existing among native merchants. The sales of Raw Cotton to-day, amount to 150 bales Bombay Staple at $420.00 to $30.25, and 100 bales Bengal at $19.75. There is nothing doing in shares.

Short-Card Player Caught.

(Alta California.)

Though the practice of roping in countrymen by the numerous short-card players that infest San Francisco is still carried on and prosecuted by these fellows in the same old style, there have been but few arrests made within the past few months, as the unfortunate victims in nine cases out of ten are induced to leave the city through intimidations or threats, or are so pleased under the influence of liquor as to be unable to positively identify the parties who swindled them out of their hard-earned money. Recently, however, officer Kearns arrested a short-card player by the name of Barney Kenney on a charge of conspiracy. The circumstances, as we are informed, are as follow: On the first day of April, a young man named E. K. Brooks, who had arrived from Red Bluffs the evening previous, was standing in front of Donahoe & Kelly's Bank, at the corner of Sacramento and Montgomery streets, when some one came up to him, inquiring at what hour the boat left for Vallejo. The young man replied that he was a stranger in the city, and did not know at what time the boat left. The person who first spoke then introduced himself as Mr. Wilson, from Virginia City. The young man then invited the stranger to have a chat with him in the What Cheer House. Wilson replied that he would rather go to the Grass Valley Saloon which is on Kearny-street, near Jackson, where he had some friends. Brooks accepted the invitation, and both went to the saloon, where they went into the back room. After being there a short time a friend of Wilson's came in, and was introduced as Mr. Johnson, but who now appears as Barney Kenney. They entered into a short conversation, during which Wilson picked up a pack of cards laying on the table and proposed to Brooks to tell his fortune. The friend laughed at the idea of his being able to do anything of the kind. Bets were made on the result. After which they proposed a game of cards, betting twenty dollars a side. After this game was concluded they played a second, in which Brooks was made to take a hand, and asked to produce a twenty; at first, he persistently refused, but finally did so from fear of a threat having been made. Before the game was over, another twenty was asked for. Brooks said he had no more, when his pretended friend said he must have it, and cut it about some; and finally, without a murmur, the unfortunate young man, who had by this time found out that he had fallen in with the Philistines, handed over the second twenty. The game rolled on, and presently the young man from the country was politely requested to turn over another twenty. He solemnly protested that he had no more; but this the friend would not believe, and told him the only thing left for him was to empty his pockets in their presence, and take out the balance of his money, which amounted to seven dollars and a half; but the kind and charitable heart of the short-card player was moved, and he contented himself with taking nine dollars. Before the game was over, Brooks was requested to watch the game closely, and, at a certain time, turn over a card. The young man said he never indulged in such practice, and begged to be excused, and all the money was placed in his hands as stakeholder. At last, he consented to turn over a card. As soon as this was done, one of the two friends remarked, "Lord, did you ever see the like?"—whilst the other snatched from Brooks the money he held in his open hand, and walked off. Brooks saw that he had been robbed out of forty-five dollars which he attempted to get back from the other friend. Not being able to recover it, he went to the Prosecuting Attorney and swore out a complaint against the two men for conspiracy. It was not till some days after that either of the two men were seen. It resulted in the arrest of Kenney, who was released on giving bonds in the sum of $500; the other has not yet been arrested. Brooks has remained here ever since, and now is a pupil of the Normal School, preparing himself to become a teacher.

CONVENTION AT SPRINGFIELD—ORGANIZATION AND DISCUSSIONS—S. S. FOSTER AND LUCY STONE THE CHIEF ACTORS.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 10th.

The Convention was called to order at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon by Stephen S. Foster, of Worcester, the veteran Abolitionist and professional reformer. By actual count, at that time, there were only forty persons in the immense City Hall, which has capacity for 3,000, and upon those unfortunates few Mr. Foster inflicted one of his stereotyped and violent philippics.

After delivering himself at length, Mr. Foster called for a permanent organization, which was effected as follows: President, Hon. E. Train, of Springfield; Secretaries, F. B. Sanborn, of Springfield, and Mrs. Richmond Kingman, of Cummington. The audience was so meagre in numbers that no attempt was made to elect Vice-Presidents, but at the evening session these were secured in the persons of Dr. Jeffrey son Church, of Springfield, and Seth Hunt, of Northampton. As soon as the machinery of the Convention was perfected, C. B. Burleigh, of Florence, the well known apostle of "advanced thought" in all directions, socially, politically, and religiously, took the floor, and began a rambling and rather incoherent harangue on the equality of the sexes. He denied that there was any reason, either in principle or expediency, why women—all women—should not vote, as freely and as unrestrainedly as do the lords of creation. This Burleigh is a peculiar individual, and in his personal appearance develops eccentricities which are anything but cheerful or attractive. Nobody disputes his right to wear the most absurd dress or the most uncleanly and disgusting style of hair, but it is difficult to see how he advances the cause of reform by so doing.

After half an hour of the Burleigh rhetoric, Mrs. Lucy Stone Blackwell, or in her own designation Lucy Stone, took the platform, and spoke for some time in favor of the cause. Mrs. Stone was plainly attired in a black silk walking-dress, having "gone back" on the bloomers, which she once championed with so much zeal, and talked easily and pleasantly, but in a voice so low that there was a great crowding together of her audience towards the platform. She urged at length the importance of the work in which they were engaged, spoke hopefully of the progress which they had already made, and even predicted that throughout the whole country women would vote for the next President. The work, she declared, was going on bravely in New Jersey, Kansas, and Rhode Island, for which there is reason for thanks, for in those States there is need enough of enlightenment. She told the story of Portia Gage, the Vineland (N. J.) matron, and of her efforts to secure the ballot for herself, after she had failed to save a son to exercise it.

H. B. Blackwell, whose claim to distinction rests in his title to Lucy Stone, followed his wife in a few remarks, and the Convention adjourned. Mr. Blackwell labored more especially to prove that women were not indifferent to the question of suffrage, but willing and anxious to vote if they could get a chance. Before adjourning promises were made of new and noted speakers at the evening session; promises, which, as the event proved, were made only to be broken.

At the evening session, the veteran and unsilenced Foster announced that they would be glad to hear from the citizens of Springfield, and especially wanted to hear arguments upon the other side of the question. After this manifestation of generosity the Foster went to occupy an hour and a half with dreary and familiar platitudes, ancient as his early career and less interesting. When he had finished, Lucy Stone again took up her parable and prolonged it for more than an hour. The lady's voice was so weak and her articulation so indistinct that her audience rapidly diminished and the galleries were speedily cleared. Mrs. Stone opposed her speech of the afternoon, but without evoking any ardent response, and at 10 o'clock the session closed. Thus ended the record of the first day.

The New York Times says: "One of the absurdities of the hour is to find the same Congressmen who are crying out for a reduction of the army, crying out also to 'annex St. Domingo' against the Antilles, 'recognize' insurgent Cuba, buy the Windward Isles, overrun Mexico, (or Sonora), Chihuahua (and Lower California at the very least) invade Canada, eat Crete, and devour the Sandwich Islands. Conceding that this and everything else could be done without resistance, the mere garrisoning would keep a big army with more than it could do."
